As you leave Weymouth High School, it is our hope that you will find yourselves prepared, both academically and socially, to meet your ever-increasing responsibilities. You are entering this new phase of your life in an age when clear, good American thinking is extremely important and necessary, if you are to continue in the mode of living to which you are accustomed.

I believe there is an old Chinese proverb which reads, "Just as tall trees are known by their shadows, so are good men known by their enemies." I mention this because, it seems to me, many people spend too much time in achieving popularity, even with the wrong kind of persons, and so they do not have time to make the right kind of friends. It also seems that a man for whom everyone has a good word cannot be very positive in his convictions and the carrying out of such convictions.

What I am trying to say, briefly, is that if you choose your friends carefully, think properly, and do your best to have others do the same, then surely your motto, "The Wrong Shall Fail . . . The Right Prevail," will be true.

I wish you all the best of everything, and again hope that your stay at Weymouth High School has been as profitable and productive as we have tried to make it.

Officers

HAVING COMPLETED OUR HIGH-SCHOOL EDUCATION, we are about to enter another phase of life. Some of us are already enrolled in higher institutions of learning, while others expect to enter various fields of occupation.

What we get from life will be the result of our daily activities. Courage, determination, and hard work are essential to achieve worthy goals. We must ever be thankful for all the privileges and opportunities the American way of life offers. By accepting every responsibility of a good citizen, we can put into effect the motto we have chosen:

The Wrong Shall Fail . . . the Right Prevail.

Now that our school days have come to a close, we realize that we must adjust our lives constructively in order to become useful members of society.

Accomplishment is not measured in wealth alone, but in the value of what is effected. Let us never forget that honesty in all actions is the key to success; let us strive to make this a better world for all.

Seniors

A MOST IMPORTANT TIME OF LIFE is now here, when we all must make a decision as to the field in which we hope to work. Unless great effort and willingness accompany our preparation, we can never achieve a feeling of self-satisfaction and happiness.

Let each one of us strive to portray the necessary courage to follow the right path that is bound to lead us to success.

HEAR INSTRUCTION AND BE WISE: (PROVERBS 8:33)

Each morning since November our school has begun its day with reading from the Scriptures. The various classes have participated with two members each week; one reading from the Bible, the oher leading the Lord's Prayer.

APPROACH TO THANKSGIVING . . .

Miss Dianne Bierman of Regis College held her audience spellbound as she revealed her many experiences in several concentration camps in Germany. She made many realize that all Americans should, with humility, thank God for His abundant blessings, instead of just taking them for granted.

SOUTH JUNIOR HIGH . . .

CAUSE AND AFTERMATH . . .

On October 15, 1954, Miss Silvester had a very serious accident here in the high school. She was walking along the corridor between 201 and 207 when, all of a sudden, a youth ploughed through the girls' basement door and knocked her down. The impact of the blow broke her glasses and fractured her left arm. She was immediately rushed to the doctor's, where the arm was reset and put into a cast.

We are all pleased that her recovery, although slow, is now complete.

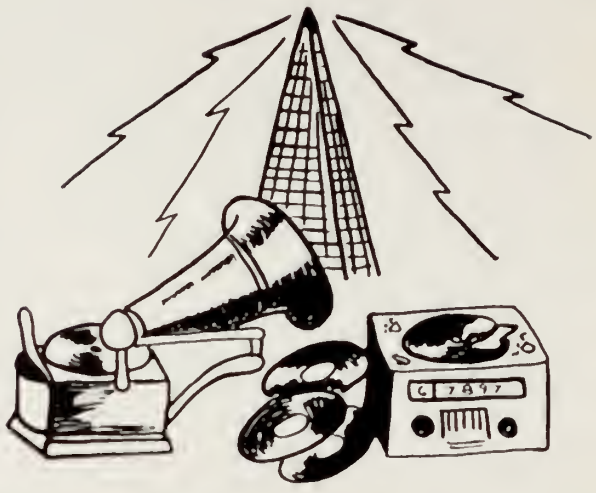
SENIOR PROM . . .

On April 29, Weymouth High was the scene of the annual Senior Prom, the final school social function for the year. The gym was attractively decorated, under the direction of Miss Silvester and the music was rendered by Frank Vigneau and his orchestra.

Edward Gurry, our class president, led the grand march. All in all, the evening was a memorable one.

HIGH FIDELITY SOUND . . .

The assembly on the new "High Fidelity" sound proved interesting. We learned that every day articles, such as the radio and the phonograph, are beginning to use it. This sound makes on feel as if the band or voices were right in the room. A person could even imagine he was attending a concert or a night club. "High Fidelity" is also being used for the 3-D movies and the cinerama. We can be sure that this new sound is just one of the many progresses in science.



SENIOR PARTY . . .

The girls' gym was the scene of gaiety and frivolity on January 28, the night of the Senior Party. Valentine's Day was the theme of the lovely decorations. Entertainment was provided by the seniors themselves. Mary Frates, Jean Wight, and Janice Oliva danced; Pat Vedoe and Mary Smith pantomimed; Roberta Drew sang; and Donna Brown, Barbara Brady, and Marie MacKay presented a comical skit.

OUR MR. STEWART . . .

Those students who took science, or who had Mr. Stuart in a study period, will never forget his pleasant personality. There was no mistaking the teacher in the brown salt and pepper jacket. He performed intricate experiments with such a proud and pleased twinkle in his eyes, for he enjoyed seeing his class acquire knowledge, and would offer any assistance which would help further a pupil's understanding of the subject.

Many classes have co-operated with him in putting on a Science Fair. Mr. Stuart spent many nights after school, helping students make interesting and educational exhibits.

Mr. Stuart came to Weymouth High in 1917. He made a big hit with students as well as with the teachers. With the work and complete co-operation that he and his classes exchanged, one may easily understand how we miss him. Although he is officially retired now, many former students still visit him, not only for social calls, but also for help in their subjects. We wish him the very best of everything, and a happy, enjoyable retirement.

MR. PRATT COMES . . .

Mr. Pratt, formerly of Rockland High came to Weymouth last year as a teacher. This year he has assisted Mr. Page as track coach. His record is an excellent one. Weymouth will have a much improved club because of his knowledge of the sport.

RECORD POLL . . .

On October 5, 1954, the favorite records of Weymouth High School were presented on Bob Clayton's "Boston Ballroom," over WHDH. The four disk jockeys representing Weymouth were Barbara Bender, Jeanne Burke, Joe Casey, and Bob Noyes.

SNOWBALL HOP . . .

The Snowball Hop took place on Friday, February 11. George Walling and his orchestra supplied the music, assisted by our own Mr. Roche, who played the base fiddle and trombone. Those present enjoyed themselves.

STRIKE UP THE BAND! . . .

His name is Mr. Stuart. He's the leader of our band. With his arrival came a boost of spirit whenever our band played at assemblies. Welcome to Weymouth High.

WHO'S ON FIRST?
WHAT'S ON SECOND? . . .

The "Big Change," the title of our Quincy football assembly, caused every pupil in the auditorium to bubble over with enthusiasm. Everyone fell silent as the curtain began to open.

Our football players nervously paraded on stage, dressed in short crepe paper shirts and white jerseys. Frank Facobacci played head cheerleader, with most of the first string players as "W" to "H." The boys did a terrific job on the "Weymouth Locomotive" and "Oh, Me! Oh, My! Oh, Mother!"

The other half of the "Big Change" came when eleven girls ran out on stage, dressed as football players. Joanne "Cibby" Cibello gave another one of her humorous performances as Coach Fisher. The girls proved to be very professional in doing their calisthenics, considering that the boys' jerseys were much too big for them.

FAREWELL ASSEMBLY . . .

GENERAL MOTORS ASSEMBLY . . .

Two talented, young men, Jack Osborne and Don Gordon, presented a General Motors Assembly for Weymouth High. Comedy was blended with education, making the program enjoyable to all. Many girls remained after the show for autographs, which the young men willingly gave.

HARRY—LOST TO WEYMOUTH . . .

Mr. Harry Arlanson, our football coach for many years, who often piloted our teams to championships, gave his farewell message to a very quiet audience. Mr. Arlanson read our admiration for him on our faces and by the full attention we gave him. His feelings were evident in the little weakness in his voice as he said, "Good bye."

Although Mr. Arlanson is at Tufts College, he will always be remembered for the great job he did here at Weymouth both as a coach and citizen in our town.

TECH TOURNEYS '52 AND '53

We shall always remember our basketball team led by Mr. Dick Whitmore in the Tech Tourney. The first game was played against Winchester, which Weymouth took by a seven-point margin. The semi finals approached with Weymouth scheduled against Fairhaven, a more experienced and undefeated team. Dick Whitmore's team fought a tough, fair game, but, because of too many fouls lost by eleven points. The school in general showed a winning spirit and left with our opponents the reputation of a good playing team whether the game was won or lost.

A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY . . .

We shall never forget the fresh woodsy smell of knotty pine that filled our auditorium last March 17 and 18, as the stage was turned into a summer camp house for the senior play, "A Young Man's Fancy."

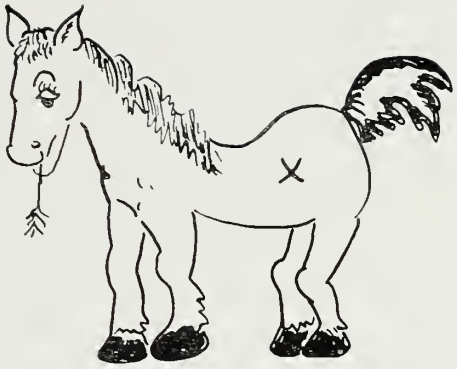
CHAMPS . . .

Our football team was tops in 1953. Led by Donny Aikens, Don Ross, and Hobie Ellis, we went undefeated, and tied with two other teams for the Eastern Massachusetts Class A Championship. In this exciting season, several of our boys made the all-star team. Our classmates playing that year included Ed Gurry, Harold Blanchard, Frank and Richard Eacobacci, and Dan Shortlidge. The Class-A Champs of 1953 were the last in Harry Arlanson's career at Weymouth.

CLASS HISTORY . . .
JUNIOR PARTY . . .

Who was the charming couple doing the "Tennessee Waltz" at the Junior Party, 1954? Pantomimists, Bobby Pitts, and Joe Casey tough competition for our "pro.." Janice Oliva! And would you ever believe that "Birdseed" Noyes was strong enough to play a gorse in that "Snow White" sketch?



EASY ED . . .

January brought to our Monday A.M. assembly a distinguished athlete from Boston Celtics, Ed McCauley. This giant basketball player delivered a talk on the relation of a person's character to his occupation. The student body was impressed, because we knew he lives what he talks.

The cheerleaders had a special cheer for this sports hero, who willingly obliged the girls with autographs.

CAN WE? . . .

In January, the Student Council tried to put on an assembly to demonstrate the need for more clubs and activities at W. H. S. Cibby Cibello made a good Swiss mountaineer, but we can't quite see where she would fit into one of the scheduled clubs. We felt ill by the end of the assembly, after the Future Nurses had administered to their victims.

VICTORY DANCE . . .

The annual Victory Dance, held November 19, was a tremendous success, but perhaps we should call it the Athletic Dance for obvious reasons.

Our orchestra leader, Baron Hugo, asked Adrienne Fusco to sing, and then everyone joined in to wish Barbara Brady and Buzzy Schofield a happy birthday. Later, Doris Swart and Clifford Rand were chosen King and Queen.

After the dance, the Scituate Cabin became a busy place. Need we say more?

HOP—HOBO STYLE . . .

Chinos and Bermuda shorts, big straw hats, one even filled with lollipops by a senior business student, were a new fad introduced at our Hobo Hop. George Walling's orchestra was great, and the large crowd really jumped.

JUNIOR OUTING . . .

Our Junior Class travelled all the way down Cape Cod to Craigville for our outing, and for what? For plenty of wind and sunburn! But we didn't mind, because it was lots of fun coming and going.

TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION . . .

The class dues were reduced one dollar this year. We can attribute this to the large number of pupils who came to the many dances and other activities, and so helped to reduce the dues.

"When you come to the Red Sea place in your life,

Where in spite of all you can do,

There is no way round, no way back,

No other way but through,

Then trust in your God with soul serene

Till the dark and the storm are gone.

He will still the winds; He will calm the waves

When He says to your soul, 'Go on.' "

High Honor Essays

EACH YEAR THE STUDENTS who have achieved the highest academic records at Weymouth High School are chosen to deliver the High-Honor Essays in the exercises held on Graduation Day.

These speakers deserve great commendation; they represent young people of admirable character and superior intellect, combined with an understanding appreciation of education.

We feel justly proud of such students and anticipate that they will continue to produce the same type of work, thus being assured of great success and happiness in their future.

The Highway To Success

Joyce Malette

FROM TIME IMMEMORIAL life has been compared to a journey with rapidly changing scenes, moving along as a vast panorama. What experiences, what emotions are crowded into a single life! To know, to think, to feel, to take part in the happenings of a day, no matter how hard or troublesome the incident, are privileges of greatest value.

This journey of life began under the guidance of our parents, who helped us lay the necessary foundation for correct morals and highest principles. After attending grammar school, we entered high school, where we began to carry out a more definite type of plan for the future. Many problems were encountered, but, after being solved, have become the foundation of our chosen vocation.

Progress in education depends mainly upon ourselves, our attitude and efforts. A well-educated person is one who has been so trained that he can take his place in society as a useful member. Charles Lindbergh, in his most recent publication, "Of Flight and Life," states, "Our future depends upon ourselves, our abilty, our character, our ideals."

An outstanding example of a man whose life should be imitated is that of Benjamin Franklin, who, by great effort and perseverance, reached the peak of success as an inventor, scientist, printer, writer, and diplomat. Many men since Franklin have achieved success, but none has surpassed him in integrity and ingenuity.

Dr. Harrison H. Gough, a research psychologist and scientist from the University of California, recently undertook the problem of discovering why some gifted persons make a place for themselves in the world; while others wander aimlessly, wasting their abilities. After long research, he devised a test to measure and forecast the psychological persistence of man. He has tested more than ten thousand people in twenty-five states and believes the tests will be most useful for advice and guidance of high school pupils.

Now has come the end of our high-school days. Within the walls of Weymouth High School, we have received the background that makes it possible for us to continue our work on an advanced scale. The way so long sought is lying ahead, with opportunities beckoning us onward. We are about to enter the great highway of life, where it is necessary to solve our own problems without the guidance of parents and teachers. What course shall we pursue to make our lives count? Eastern mystics say, "Thou canst not travel on the Path before thou hast become that Path itself."

For some, life will be easy; for others, tremendously difficult. But each of us, like Christian in "The Pilgrim's Progress," must travel the road, whether it be long or short. We will meet the temptations of Vanity Fair, struggle with Giant Despair, and pass through the Valley of the Shadow. Let us have the courage to meet all enemies and go on victoriously. "Ask and it shall be given unto you; seek, and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you."

What counts is not the wealth we may acquire, nor the fame we may achieve, but how well we use the talents that we possess, how well we serve God and our fellow men. Our salvation, our only salvation, lies in the balanced qualities of spirit and mind. Without this control, without this balance, our military victories can bring no lasting peace; our laws no lasting justice. In this great strife for peace, all of us can help with service, honest endeavor, faith that God lives and rules, and the hope that sometime we may hear His welcome words, "Well done."

Progress In Helping Youth

Jean Richardson

TODAY THE COUNTRY faces a very grave problem that threatens our future internal security, the solution of which must be found in order to maintain our safety and position of leadership—a problem dealing with the youth of our nation, known as juvenile delinquency.

Since 1948, the appalling fact is that there has been an increase of forty per cent. in juvenile crime. Youthful delinquents have been charged with over half the automobile thefts and a large number of the burglaries, assaults, and homicides. Many reasons lead up to this wrong doing: broken homes, little religion, overcrowded conditions in metropolitan areas, and lack of parental guidance; besides the influence of television, crime comics, narcotic addiction, and criminal associates.

In speaking of this problem, Eleanor Roosevelt said, "There is much talk of how to handle children in trouble. Let's find out what is wrong." What progress has been made in finding the cause, in helping this class of young people? Let us take as an example of excellence, one in our own community, the Quincy Juvenile Court. We can be justly proud of this group for the outstandingly considerate treatment extended to young offenders, who receive every chance to rehabilitate themselves. Unlike the Quincy Court, however, is one in a large city of a Midwestern state, where little understanding is extended to the individual, exemplified by the action of one judge who, after reviewing the cases of thirteen boys one year, committed them all to the state reform school. It is not surprising, then, that the crime rate there is thirty-five per cent. higher, according to population, than it is in Quincy.

In 1946 Judge Kenneth Nash established the Juvenile Court in Quincy; prior to this all youthful delinquents were tried in adult courts where the first offender was associated with the hardened criminal. Now the Juvenile Court evidences great progress, serving seven cities and towns in East Norfolk County, helping young Americans who are not criminal potentials but misguided boys and girls with the wrong evaluation of life.

It is the belief of Mr. Richard Clendenen, Executive Director of the Senate Subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency, that only a small portion of delinquent children need institutional care. These few are first arraigned, then sent to the "Travelling Clinic," which is composed of a psychiatrist, a psychologist, and a social worker who send in reports as to the child's mental and physical aptitudes. Then, upon the recommendation of this group, the child is either put under parental guidance, placed on probation in a foster home, or sent to a special school, such as the "Stevens' Home for Boys" or the "Longview Farm" in Massachusetts, the "Clinic of Junior Republic" in Connecticut, or the "Golden Rule Farm" in New Hampshire, where the child learns his obligations to society and the importance of proper conduct.

Should the case be serious, as in the case of an habitual offender, he is sent to be tested by the "Youth Service Board," which has charge of the Lyman School and the Shirley Reform School. This is used, however, only as an extreme measure, such as for repeated burglaries, property damages, and other criminal actions. Most of the juveniles are cared for at the special schools mentioned before, or are placed on probation. In all cases, every effort is made to help and guide a confused individual toward the right path. Tuition for the special schools is usually shared by the parents and the community, in order to give both a responsibility for the child.

What is the result of this effort on the part of our community to help the juveniles? According to Mr. Edward Batchelder, Juvenile Probation Officer for the Quincy Court, the number of delinquents here annually is 238, or one per cent. of the total juvenile population. Likewise, Mr. Batchelder has reported that, in most cases, the youngster does not, as is true in many communities, become a lawbreaker in adult life.

The Quincy Juvenile Court is just one example of the earnest desire of Americans to understand and aid their young citizens. Never in past years has there been such an effort. But, as Mr. John R. Ellingston, Special Adviser on Criminal Justice for Youth at the American Law Institute in California, says, "Young people are basically good and will take the right path if given half a chance." We are giving them that chance not only for their sake, but for the good of all.

Churches and Scouts, social agencies and parent organizations, Y. M. C. A.'s and schools, all are co-operating to bring about better understanding. Surely by such co-operation, "The Wrong Shall Fail, the Right Prevail," assuring our country of a long and prosperous future.

Advancing With The Atom

Malcolm D. Tobey

CENTURIES BEFORE CHRIST, man showed a great interest in the structure of the universe. In 400 B. C., Democritus, a Greek scientist, who thought that all matter was made up of minute particles, originated the term atom.

Not until 1803, twenty-two centuries later, however, did John Dalton further develop this idea by referring to the atom as the smallest particle of a single element which could take part in chemical reaction. In 1896, Madame Curie discovered the radium atom, the most radioactive and among the most expensive of our metals. In the early 1900's, Ernest Rutherford discovered the electron and proton with the atom itself; later, in 1919, he was successful in changing one element, nitrogen, to another, oxygen. In 1938, Dr. Lise Meitner and Professor Otto Hahn, at the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute in Germany, split the first atom, one of uranium. A year later, Dr. Arthur Compton, at the University of Chicago, caused the first known chain reaction, and the stage was set for the atomic bomb.

Along with the atomic bomb came a demonstration of Dr. Einstein's theory, stated decades earlier, that matter can be changed to energy and, conversely, energy to matter. When matter is changed to energy, the total energy of radioactive material can be released in a split second, as in the atomic bomb, or more slowly, as in atomic reactors.

The government has set aside most of the raw materials of atomic power for military use. Progress has been great, as shown by the development of the atomic cannon, atomic submarine, and the hydrogen bomb. It has been necessary to develop these weapons, but, now, more atomic energy should be available for improvements in industry and for the home. It is the hope of military men that industry will take over the further development of nuclear energy.

A good example of such development is a Boston firm; namely, Tracerlab, founded by William E. Barbour and Wendell C. Peacock in 1946. When Tracerlab was established, nine scientists each donated $1500 to be used as capital. Since the new and revolutionary business was not considered a good risk, no bank or insurance company would give these pioneers a loan. Yet Tracerlab researchers soon invented the Autoscaler, a device for measuring the rate of disintegration of radioactive isotopes. This allowed scientists to measure the radioactive strength of a substance and the effect on the materials and on their health.

Immediately, Tracerlab was flooded with orders from the U. S. government and from many other countries. The United States was the biggest customer, with an order for fifty-eight Autoscalers at $750 apiece. This, instead of making the company, nearly caused its ruin, for the men working on the project became well known and were sought as consultants for other companies or for the government.

Still Barbour kept on and developed the Beta Gauge which measures the thickness of any substance made in a continuous sheet, like tape or paper, without touching the substance or slowing down the process. It does this by measuring the number of beta particles which are absorbed by the material. The use of this gauge enabled one manufacturer to save $150,000 a year, by convincing him that he was using too much of a certain material in his product.

With the release of secret data by the government and by leasing radioactive materials to various companies, Tracerlab, at last, had a chance to live up to its name. Its workers devised methods of tracing an amount of radioactive material as small as one billionth of an ounce. These new methods were put to work in scientific research or in practical ways, as in solving the mysteries of the circulatory system or proving the effectiveness of proper fertilization in farming. As Tracerlab began to swing into full scale work, its earnings began to mount up from the first struggling existence to a firm of nearly a thousand workers which is worth about fourteen million dollars.

The work of Tracerlab and similar companies has shown great progress in the peaceful application of the atom. Still they have barely scratched the surface and the greatest advance is yet to come, for who knows what tomorrow will bring? Robert LeBaron, Chairman of the Military Liaison Committee of the Atomic Energy Commission, predicts, "There is reasonable chance that atomic power may be one of the principal sources of air power within fifteen or twenty years." These airplanes would possibly be able to stay in the air for two hundred hours or more. Also, it is within reason to speak of batteries which could last for thirty years, or of electric generators which could produce electricity at one-fiftieth the present cost. All this may seem fantastic; but if you consider the advancement made in the past fifteen years, you must realize that still greater progress lies in the future.

"We can't all play a winning game;

Someone has to lose.

But we can play it so our name

No one dare accuse.

Comes to score against our name,

He writes not whether we won or lost,

But how we played the game."

STUDENT COUNCIL

The main objective of the Student Council is to promote closer relations between the student body and the faculty. The group is in charge of organizing school social activities, fire drills, and lunch-room duty. The council members, chosen by their classmates from the high and vocational schools, receive ideas from the student body and discuss them for future action, with the final approval from faculty members. This year the group joined the National and New England Associations of Student Councils.

REFLECTOR

Our school magazine, the Reflector, was published four times this year. Of course, the Editor-in-chief, Barbara Bender, never rested until all work was completed and the awards were given at the out-of-door assembly.

Every year there has been a Reflector contest, but the contest this year was made more public, and a new set of rules was drawn up. Four winners were chosen from each issue, and from the twelve finalists one winner was chosen. A personally engraved fountain pen was awarded to the winner.

Weymouth High School is proud of its Reflector, since the entire magazine is written and published by pupils of the school. The faculty advisers and the print-shop workers have been a constant help to the various staffs.

YEARBOOK STAFF

The Yearbook Staff and Policy Committee, under the editor-in-chief Jeanne Burke, has worked hard to produce a book worthy of Weymouth High School.

The committee has carried out its theme of traditional ivy successfully throughout, bringing a note of nostalgia to all graduates of Weymouth High School as they recognize the familiar school scenes.

We of the Yearbook Staff and Policy Committee wish to thank all those who have aided us, especially faculty members who worked with us many long hours. Only with their help have we been able to produce a yearbook for 1955 of which we may all be proud.

YEARBOOK SALES

It is only natural that the Yearbook be of the greatest interest to the seniors, as it is devoted mainly to them and their activities.

This year, in order to arouse the interest of the three lower classes, it was decided to sponsor a contest, whereby the rooms that made one hundred per cent. sales would have their pictures on a special page.

We are proud to say that many rooms co-operated and achieved the mark, but only the first two are regarded the winners.

Congratulations to Room 111 and Room 201!

SENIOR CLASSROOMS

Our Yearbook would not be complete without some mention of our classrooms. The courses taught in them are many and varied, ranging from college preparatory to business administration. Basically, however, all our teachers are striving to meet one goal. They are trying to educate us so that we, the leaders of tomorrow, will be good American citizens.

Our heartfelt thanks go to all of our teachers for making our four years at Weymouth High not only memorable, but also profitable as well.

LABORATORY ASSISTANTS

The laboratory assistants, under the guidance of Mr. Loud, have aided physics and chemistry classes by having the necessary equipment ready for use.

CHOIR AND ORCHESTRA

The Choir, under the able direction of Mr. Russell Jack, enjoyed a regular round of activities this past season. Several members took part in the Massachusetts All-State Music Festival at Symphony Hall, in Boston, February 25. Other members took part in the New England Music Festival, held in Rutland, Vermont, April 2.

Once again our Orchestra has completed its schedule with the annual Spring Concert. Limited membership has been the greatest impediment. We are hoping that many new members will join us another year.

BAND

This past year the band, under the able direction of Mr. Raymond Stewart, achieved a high rating in marching and in playing technique.

The drum majorettes who led the band in its maneuvers were Ann Vaughan, Jana Fowler, Ida Nillson, Nancy Keefe, and, as head majorette, Barbara Puopolo.

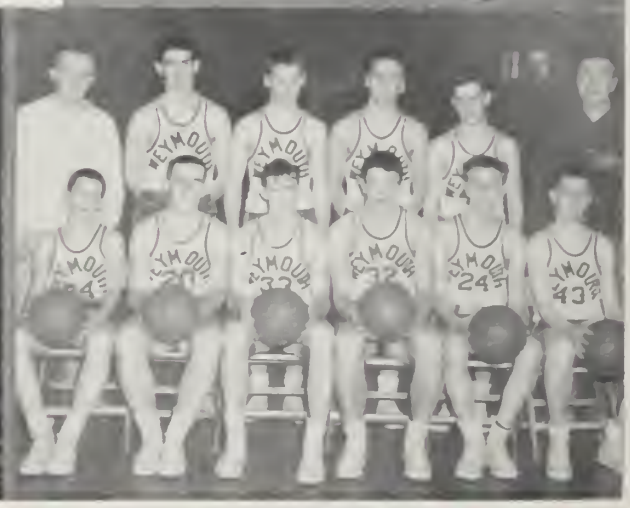
BASKETBALL TEAM

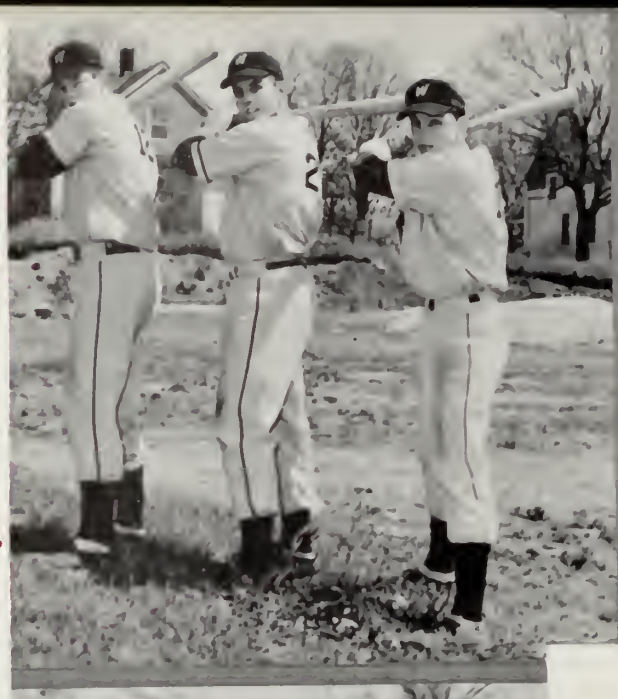
This year's basketball team engaged in many thrilling contests, although dropping more than their share of heartbreakers. They made up for what they lacked in height and shooting ability with fight and determination. Many underclassmen saw service, thus virtually insuring a more successful campaign next year.



FOOTBALL

During the past year our football team did not have so successful a season as we should have liked. Coach John Fisher had a difficult task, as the team consisted primarily of inexperienced players. The boys worked hard and their spirit and teamwork should be given great praise.

The season ended with the winning of the traditional Thanksgiving game with Brockton which, we hope, is an indication of a winning streak for the coming year.



BASEBALL

This year John Fisher made his bow as coach of the baseball team. Only a few players had returned from last year's squad, but, with aid from assistant-coach Leo Hayes and captain Art Bandini, Mr. Fisher assembled a team for the first game in less than two weeks. Our ball club lost its first game to an experienced Watertown team 9–3, and fell 5–0 against Braintree. We topped Milton Academy 11–8 in a slugging contest. The next two games were lost in close battles. However, the team is confident of moving up in the final games of the season.

TRACK

The largest track squad in Weymouth's history, one of fifty members, breezed through its winter schedule. There were no outstanding stars, but several consistent winners.

An injury to Coach Page gave extra duty to Assistant Coach Mal Pratt and Captain Jack Lombard as the team faced a rugged eight-meet spring schedule, highlighted by a defence of its South Shore crown.

CROSS COUNTRY

The cross-country squad of 1955, having a fairly successful season, won three and lost three of the dual meets.

An unusally promising crop of underclassmen will don the Maroon and Gold uniform in the fall, when a very fine season is expected.

GIRLS' SPORTS

This past year, girls' sports became increasingly popular. The program was interestingly arranged and attracted many of our girls. Practice sessions were held during some of the gym periods and the others after school. The main activities consised of volleyball, basketball, badminton, softball, and tennis. Libby Field and the Legion Field tennis court were the practice fields. Acting as sports leaders, Miss Arnold and Mrs. Flagg gave a great deal of their time to help the girls and to promote good sportmanship and character among them.

CHEERLEADERS

The cheerleaders of this year did an excellent job of encouraging the boys at the football and basketball games. These morale builders were: W – Sheila Nelson; E – Joanne Fall; Y – Jane Foster; M – Doris Swart; O – Patricia Vedoe; U – Roberta Vedoe; T – Beverly Stevens; H – Judy Pitts; and head-cheerleader Janet Joseph.

VOCATIONAL

Many new and exciting fields are opened to high-school boys who wish to prepare for one of the five trades offered by the Weymouth Vocational School. The education of these students is both academic and vocational.

The Cabinetmaking Shop boys have completed many items of modern and colonial furniture this year. Mr. Dwyer has done his best to train these boys, many of whom are working in leading cabinetmaking shops all over the country.

The Print Shop boys have been kept busy all the year. The biggest is our yearbook, which furnishes work all through the school year. With the experience gained in this shop, many will be employed by printing shops throughout this area.

VOCATIONAL

The Automobile Shop is the dream of many boys who are mechanically inclined. These boys receive assignments on many types of jobs. With their training, they are able to find automotive work most readily.

To help the boys in the Carpentry Shop learn their trade more thoroughly, our shop builds a house each year. These boys will have the knowledge to give them a good start in the trade.

The Sheet Metal department has a full schedule. Among the most outstanding projects were building and installing heating systems in three homes and in the Humphrey School cafeteria. Other projects were the making of a variety of tanks and ornamental items, such as colonial lamps.

AGRICULTURE

Out of Weymouth High's many different courses, there is one that stands out among the rest, that offered by the Agricultural Department. This department is composed of about forty boys, plus three instructors, Mr. Hilmer S. Nelson, Head of the Department; Mr. Harold Nelson; and Miss Marie H. Ghiorse.

An important part in every "Aggie" boy's training is the farm project that each one must complete in the summer. The fact that most of the boys make over one thousand dollars a summer, amazes some people, but to the student who does his work it is not so surprising.

The Weymouth Agricultural Department is actually a branch of the Norfolk County Agricultural School in Walpole, Massachusetts.

THE LIBRARY CLUB

The Library Club is one of the most enjoyable extra-curricular activities offered by our high school, especially for those who find pleasure in working with books. We hold our meetings in the high school library, where books for all needs can be found. It is possible to do research work here with the many encyclopedias, atlases, dictionaries, and other reference material available. Both non-fiction and fiction books of all kinds can be obtained, as well as popular magazines and periodicals.

The Library Club always welcomes new members and will be pleased to welcome you next fall. Come, join us!

SPORTS ASSEMBLY

One of the favorite assemblies for the year 1954—1955 was the sports assembly, conducted by a former Weymouth High football player and captain, Mr. George Hunt, who led a panel discussion on the topic, "What Qualities Are Needed by an Athlete?" Members of this panel were James Kane of Boston College and Weymouth High; Joe Coveney, twice captain of a Weymouth football team; Father George Kerr, former member of a Frank Leahy Notre Dame team; Arlington's Coach Burns; and Weymouth's Coach Fisher. The qualities of faith in one's abilities, perseverance, initiative, determination and hard work were praised.

PEP CLUB

The Pep Club is an organization composed of approximately two hundred girls. This club is under the supervision of Miss Ghiorse and its elected officers. The main objective of the club is to support all athletic function.

Among some of the achievements made by the Pep Club was the Snowball Hop and a sports assembly.

AUDIO-VISUAL INSTRUCTION

The Division of Audio-Visual Instruction is under the direction of Mr. Paul Cleaves. The main purpose is to supply motion pictures, filmstrips, records, exhibits, and other audio-visual aids to all the schools in Weymouth.

This department has charge of Driver Education also, in which program Mr. Cleaves is assisted by Mr. Pratt and Mr. Swan of the High School and Mr. Mahn of the Vocational School.

ORATORICAL CONTEST

The annual American Legion Oratorical Contest was held at Legion Hall in East Weymouth with five participants: Harriet Badger, David Bartlett, Joanne Fall, Virginia Mahn, and Jean Richardson, who gave their essays before an audience of judges, teachers, relatives, and friends. Choosing the best was a most difficult task, but the choice was an excellent one, Jean Richardson and alternate, Virginia Mahn. The participants would like very much to thank Miss Andem, Mr. Kearns, and Miss White for their untiring efforts in helping the contestants.

FUTURE NURSES

The purpose of the Future Nurses' Club is to help girls decide if nursing is to be their vocation.

We have had hospital-school students speak at our meetings. We also visited the Quincy Hospital and Massachusetts Hospital School in the course of the year.

SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club enjoyed a very successful year, under the direction of Mrs. Bedell and Miss Waterman. Meetings were once a month. One of the highlights of the year was the Christmas Party, held in the library. Our final meeting was climaxed by a "cook-out" at Houghton's Pond.

SENIOR PLAY

The Senior Play, "A Young Man's Fancy," was a great success. This comedy concerned the happenings at a boys' summer camp, the action being centred around the counsellor, Harold, played by Glen Gibson, and the problem child Dickie, played by Bob Noyes. An excellent job was done by both director, Miss Edna Flaherty, and the cast, which included Glen Gibson, Sheila Nelson, Robert Noyes, Jean O'Meara, Miriam Vartanean, Mary Smith, Ralph Raymond, David Bartlett, Robert Pitts, Nathaniel Puffer, Paul Hansen, Eleanor Doble, Mary Frates, Sandra Allen, and Robert Larson. Two successful performances were given.

CLASS WILL

WE, THE CLASS OF 1955, as we prepare to leave the portals of Weymouth High School, desire to leave to our Alma Mater, along with our love and affection, some concrete aids to make our school even better and greater. To this end, we, after careful deliberation, do hereby make the following bequests:

To Mr. Mapes, our superintendent, we leave our sincere thanks for making the Weymouth school system one of which we are proud to have been a part.

To Mr. Whittle, we leave the confusion of new pupils entering in the fall, and the joy of seeing them graduate four years later, a nucleus of a good American citizenry.

To the School Committee, we leave a device for providing funds for new schools without having sessions with any finance committee.

To Mr. Lyons, a lie detector.

To the underclassmen, we leave the wisdom to learn more easily what we seniors took twelve years to learn.

To the Chemistry Lab, a deodorizer.

To the Cafeteria, an automatic chorus to sing all the "Congratulations" and "Happy Birthdays".

To Miss McMorrow, a safety box from which to direct traffic in the upper corridor.

To each vocational department, pupils with abilities that will make them skilled mechanics, printers, carpenters, and leaders in their field.

To the athletic teams, a washing machine to clean all uniforms, a snow plow to clear the track of snow, a cooling unit for the basketball team to cool off during the games, an automatic baseball-hitting machine to give Mr. Hayes a rest.

As we affix our names to this, our last official act as members of the student body of Weymouth High School, we pledge our loyal support to all activities designed to uphold or improve the reputation of Weymouth High School.

OUR AMBITIONS

To help the world become a better place,
To stay at peace with all and yet be free,
To help our fellow man live fruitfully,
To make a work of lasting art and grace,
To learn to know and love the commonplace,
To solve a part of science's mystery,
To live our lives content with what may be,
To have an honest heart, a smiling face,
These are our dreams. We are all-powerful.
The future of the earth is in our hands.
We touch it, wondering, afraid to keep
So great a trust. The earth is beautiful.
Dear Lord, guide Thou our tender hopes and plans,
With love as infinite as space is deep.
